KeyState Corporate Management to provide captive management services in Nevada and Delaware.

Las Vegas, NV – August 4, 2005 -- KeyState Corporate Management now offers captive management services to captive insurance companies in Nevada and Delaware. Captive insurance organizations are companies that are owned and controlled by their insureds. Although there are a variety of reasons that companies form captives, some of the main advantages include reduced insurance costs, risk retention, direct access to reinsurance markets, and federal/state tax minimization and deferral opportunities.

“With increasing insurance costs, large and mid-size companies can now look to innovative captive insurance structures, which oftentimes reduce overall insurance costs and provide other benefits,” states Monte Miller, CEO of KeyState Corporate Management.

KeyState’s core business is providing resident officers & independent directors, corporate management services, and accounting services, all of which are necessary components of captive management services. KeyState has built relationships with national and regional accounting firms and international re-insurance brokers, which will allow them to offer a turnkey captive management product to their clients.

KeyState Corporate Management, a Nevada Holding Services company, began providing corporate management services in 1991. Based in Las Vegas, Nevada, KeyState also has offices in Wilmington, Delaware. KeyState clients include many Fortune 500 companies, which maintain over $50 billion in assets in their investment subsidiaries and special purpose entities. KeyState has been approved as a captive manager by the Nevada Insurance Commissioner and is a member of the Nevada Captive Insurance Association.
